

Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck Announces Mid-Year Federal Lobbying Revenue

Jul 19, 2012

Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck saw growth in its federal lobbying practice during the second quarter, reporting midyear revenues of $11,450,000, a 7-percent increase over midyear 2011.

"We've built on the momentum of our first quarter, signing several new, notable clients," said Al Mottur, managing partner of Brownstein's Washington, D.C. office. "Despite the typical slow down our industry sees in a presidential election year, we have remained very active across a broad spectrum of issues and industries."

Brownstein's 2012 second-quarter revenue of $5,820,000 is up over the firm's federal lobbying revenue of $5,630,000 in the first quarter.

The numbers for the second quarter of 2012 will be filed on July 20 as part of the quarterly filing requirements under the federal Lobbying Disclosure Act.
