Robert Attai's high-level business acumen, global transactional prowess and relentless determination position him to handle complex challenges facing our clients. Utilizing his domestic and international experience, he provides strategic business counsel on a diverse range of challenges across multiple industries.

Known for his detail-oriented, business-first approach, Rob represents clients in a broad range of business transactions. He and his team serve as counsel in joint ventures, stockholders and operating agreements; financings and restructurings; mergers; stock and asset purchases; corporate governance and other complex business transactions in a variety of industries including real estate, technology, energy and infrastructure. His cross-border business transactions and cross-cultural negotiations have brought him across the globe to manage projects, lending a global perspective and unique breadth of experience to his practice.

Recent examples of Rob's work include: in infrastructure, counseling on the global procurement and integration of supplies and materials valued in excess of $1 billion; in real estate, counseling on joint ventures to acquire, develop, finance and dispose of real estate and related operating companies in partnership with the firm's deep bench of real estate talent; in technology, providing counsel regarding entity formation and financings with strategic and financial investors for start-ups to growth-stage and mature enterprises; in the energy industry, managing joint ventures and acquisitions and dispositions of oil and gas, solar and wind projects and assets; and in the general corporate area, acting as outside counsel in the formation of entities, capital restructuring, management compensation and corporate governance matters, debt and equity financings, mergers and acquisitions and general contract negotiations.

Prior to joining Brownstein, Rob was a partner with a large national law firm.
