Gianna Setoudeh brings several years of client management experience as a policy assistant at Brownstein. A registered lobbyist, Gianna supports the firm's policy professionals through research, coordination of meetings and conference calls, attendance at hearings and briefings, writing memos and policy position letters, and generally tracking legislation and contacts.

Prior to joining the firm, Gianna most recently worked as an education coordinator with the statewide nonprofit organization, where she coordinated continuing education courses. She also developed her client management experience and analytical skills while working as a program advisor for a private education consulting firm. While there, she worked independently with clients, offering recommendations on state mandate compliance and strategic planning.
