Apr 21, 2014

Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck reports $5,525,000 for its first-quarter 2014 federal lobbying revenues.

“We’ve had a strong start to 2014,” said Al Mottur, managing partner of Brownstein’s Washington, DC office. “Our revenue is up from last quarter and we saw a four percent increase from the first quarter of 2013, even with it being an election year. We plan to build on our first quarter success throughout the coming year.”

The numbers for the first quarter of 2014 will be filed on April 21 as part of the quarterly filing requirements under the federal Lobbying Disclosure Act.
