

Stakeholders Must Engage Policymakers on Driverless Cars
Nov 17, 2016

Article

Co-authored, The Hill, November 17, 2016

Autonomous vehicles hold the promise of reducing vehicular deaths and decreasing fuel consumption. They create opportunity for Americans who may otherwise be unable to access transportation. But the advent of driverless cars also raises a host of policy issues for regulators and law makers. Dozens of industries and thousands of companies have the potential to be impacted by these policies; the time for them to engage in the process is now.

Click here to read entire article.

Meet The Team

Brian Wild

Policy Director

T 202.872.5295

bwild@bhfs.com

Related Practices

- Government Relations