

Brownstein's Santa Barbara Employees Walk to End Alzheimer's

Nov 09, 2018

A group of employees, family members and friends from Brownstein's Santa Barbara office participated in the Walk to End Alzheimer's on Nov. 3. The Alzheimer's Association's annual walk, which is held in more than 600 communities, is the world's largest event to raise awareness and funds for Alzheimer's care, support and research.

The walk, which took place along Santa Barbara's Beach Boulevard, featured participants carrying windmill flowers. Orange flowers represented walkers who support the cause and vision of a world without Alzheimer's, yellow flowers represented participants who are currently supporting or caring for an individual with Alzheimer's, purple flowers represented walkers who have lost a loved one to the disease and blue flowers represented walkers with Alzheimer's or dementia.

Between Brownstein's sponsorship and participants' fundraising efforts, Team Brownstein raised more than $8,000 toward this important cause.

Throughout the year, Brownstein organizes Karma volunteer projects so employees and clients as well as their family and friends can give back to the communities in which they live and work. For the firm's 50th anniversary, Brownstein plans to complete 50 Karma Projects in 2018.
