

Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck Announces Its Federal Lobbying Revenues

Jul 23, 2018

Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck reports $7,150,000 for its second-quarter 2018 federal lobbying revenues. This represents a 3.1 percent increase over the second-quarter of 2017 federal lobbying revenues.

“Q2 is in line with the strong year we’ve had so far in 2018,” said Elizabeth Gore, Brownstein’s government relations department chair. “We expect to continue this growth leading up to the midterms and have brought on some all-star strategic hires in Q2 that will add to our bipartisan team which is the cornerstone of our practice.”

The numbers for the second quarter of 2018 were filed as part of the quarterly filing requirements under the federal Lobbying Disclosure Act.
