Celebrating 50 years for any business is an impressive feat. Norm Brownstein, Jack Hyatt and Steve Farber had no idea what the future would hold when they opened their law firm in Denver in 1968. During the past five decades, Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck has seen an evolution within the legal industry as well as periods of economic recession and incredible growth, including expansion into new markets and practices. The values that the three founders practiced daily – “All In, Excellence, Respect and Giving Back” – are, today, our companywide shared values, and serve as the foundation for everything we do as a firm.
