

Podcast

Brownstein Podcast Series, March 2, 2018

In the latest episodes, Brownstein policy professionals take a look into what's going on in Washington, D.C., on a policy and political level.

In the first episode, listen in as Policy Directors Brian Wild and Drew Littman join Strategic Advisor Mark Begich to give an update on the current political landscape. With the 2018 midterm elections still nine months out, their bipartisan discussion includes primary activity, predictions on if the makeup of the House and Senate could shift and the potential impact of voters in the 18-29 age group.

In the second, Brownstein Policy Directors Elizabeth Gore and Elizabeth Maier bring their broad knowledge of congressional issues from both sides of the aisle together for a discussion, moderated by Strategic Advisor Mark Begich, that includes the possibility of a tax reform fix-it bill, the recent decision by the Supreme Court to not review DACA, the impact of the ongoing Russia special investigation and how the deficit could play out in the 2018 midterm elections.

Meet The Team

Mark P. Begich	Strategic Consulting Advisor	T 202.652.2351	mbegich@bhfs.com
Drew C. Littman	Policy Director	T 202.383.4702	dlittman@bhfs.com
Elizabeth A. Maier	Policy Director	T 202.872.5299	emaier@bhfs.com
Brian Wild	Policy Director	T 202.872.5295	bwild@bhfs.com