

Brownstein Surges To No. 2 Among Federal Lobbying Firms

Feb 02, 2016

Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck is currently No. 2 among federal lobbying firms by revenue, a jump from No. 3 last year and No. 18 in 2009. Brownstein recently announced its final 2015 federal lobbying revenues, including a 9 percent year-over-year gain to a total of $25.7 million in lobbying revenue.

“This significant achievement shows the strength of our federal government relations team and the strategic positioning of our firm,” said Marc Lampkin, managing partner of Brownstein’s Washington, D.C., office. “We are involved in some of the country’s biggest legislative debates and are well positioned to help our clients navigate their most significant challenges.”

The Washington D.C. office celebrated its 20th anniversary in October and attributes its success to the strong collaboration and substantial experience of its team, which continues to grow in talent and experience.

Brownstein’s federal government relations group boasts professionals with experience working on Capitol Hill, in the Executive Branch, and for multiple government agencies. By strategically adding top talent with bipartisan backgrounds and hands-on experience in expanding areas of public policy such as health care, energy and antitrust, Brownstein’s federal government relations group continues to cement its reputation for successful outcomes and excellent counsel on Capitol Hill and beyond.
