

Lampkin, Mottur and Ortiz Named to The Hill's 2014 Top Lobbyist List

Oct 23, 2014

Marc Lampkin, Al Mottur and Manny Ortiz, members of Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck's bipartisan lobbying team, were recognized in The Hill's 2014 Top Lobbyist List. In addition to the accolade, the publication noted that "this bipartisan super group has ties to prominent policymakers." The firm is ranked number four among the country's top lobbying shops based on revenue.

Marc Lampkin, managing partner of Brownstein's Washington, DC, office and co-chair of the firm's Government Relations Department, has been included in The Hill's list since 2011. A leading Republican lobbyist and seasoned strategist, Marc brings veteran campaign, public policy and legislative strategy experience to his clients. He has a unique understanding of all aspects of policy development, public opinion, communications and the legislative process—and how they influence and impact each other. Marc's years on the Hill and his extensive relationships with administration officials and staffers on both sides of the aisle, at policy think tanks, trade associations and with the media, have led to unofficial advisor roles for numerous members of Congress, cabinet officials and other leading Washington policymakers.

Al Mottur, former Government Relations co-chair and office managing partner, has been included in The Hill's list since 2011. Al is well known for his extensive experience in telecommunications policy in Congress and at the Federal Communications Commission. Al has helped numerous major corporations develop and execute complex public policy advocacy strategies in Congress and in many executive branch agencies, including the FCC, the FTC and the Department of Agriculture.

Manny Ortiz has been included in The Hill's list since 2004. Considered "the young lobbyist with the most influence in Washington" by Washingtonian magazine, "Puerto Rico's go-to guy in Washington" by The New York Times and "one of Washington's Powerhouse Lobbyists" by CNN, Manny is a trusted advisor to Fortune 50 CEOs as well as politicians. Foreign governments and the world's leading corporate brands depend on him for his political ties, strategic advice and development of comprehensive government relations plans to advance and protect interests. Manny successfully represents his clients on complex issues in the halls of Congress, at the White House and with executive agencies.

Click here to learn more about Brownstein's Government Relations practice. Click here to read the full story from The Hill.

---

Meet The Team

---

Marc S. Lampkin	Shareholder	T 202.652.2341	mlampkin@bhfs.com
Alfred E. Mottur	Shareholder	T 202.872.5284	amottur@bhfs.com

---

Related Practices

- Government Relations