

Wyoming 2022 Midterm Election Results and Analysis

BROWNSTEIN CLIENT ALERT, NOVEMBER 10, 2022

The Wyoming general election was held on Tuesday, Nov. 8, 2022. As expected, Republicans prevailed and continue to hold all statewide constitutional offices, control of the legislature and the sole U.S. House of Representatives seat. In the August primary, Liz Cheney lost her reelection bid to Harriet Hageman who prevailed over Democrat challenger Lynnette Greybull with more than double the votes.

During redistricting three additional seats were added to the existing 90, one Senate seat and two House seats, for a new total of 93 legislators.

Wyoming Executive Offices

- Governor: Mark Gordon (R) defeated challenger Theresa Livingston (D) 143,664 to 30,676 votes
- Secretary of State: Chuck Gray had no challenger in the general after defeating Tara Nethercott in the primary
- State Auditor: Incumbent Kristi Racines had no general election challenger
- State Treasurer: Incumbent Curt Meier had no general election challenger
- Superintendent of Public Instruction: Megan Degenfelder (R) defeated Sergio Maldonado (D) 142,511 to 43,251 votes

Wyoming State Legislature

WYOMING STATE SENATE

Heading into the election, Republicans controlled the state Senate by a 28-2 margin. On Tuesday, a total of 15 of the 30 Senate seats were up for election, plus the additional seat added during redistricting. Republicans will maintain their majority with a 29-2 margin. The Senate will have five new senators, one who crossed over from the House, and will maintain a strong level of institutional knowledge with a total of 26 returning senators.
